Because there's no place like home

Sometimes having the freedom to choose where, when, and how you recover from an unexpected accident or illness is all you need for comfort and peace of mind.

Age in your place

The number of Americans over age 65 is expected to rise from 56 million in 2020 to 84 million in 2050, and 40% of such adults will need daily assistance.¹

The overall share of the U.S. economy devoted to health care spending continues to increase year-over-year. Spending growth for home health care agencies is expected to be $153.19 billion by 2029, an increase of 7.2% (from 2022).²

Plan now for the unexpected later

Even those who lead a healthy lifestyle may be at risk of experiencing an unexpected health issue requiring the need for therapy and rehabilitation.

About 73% of all long-term care is provided in the home by informal caregivers such as family members and friends who are limited to activities that don't require a skilled background and receive no compensation.³

The market for home care is exploding. Thanks to baby boomers becoming seniors, there's the need for skilled care and lower-priced alternatives to institutional care.⁴

You should have choices for your care

Out-of-pocket costs can be expensive for accidents or illnesses that require long recovery times. How will you plan for the unexpected? What impact will these expenses have?

Whether working or retired, it's important to consider and plan for the impact that rising health care costs for at home recovery and hospital stays could have on you and your family's finances.

Planning ahead may be difficult because you may not know now what care you might need later. One of the first steps is to determine the types of help you might want in the near future – especially if you live alone.

Did you know?

The emergency room visit rate for adults age 75 and older was 66 visits per 100 people, higher than the rate for all other age groups (except for infants).¹

Top conditions for emergency room visits:

1. Injuries and accidents
2. Heart disease
3. Stroke
4. Chest pains
5. Shortness of breath
6. Pneumonia
7. Broken bones
8. Arthritis
9. Abdominal pain
10. Drug reactions

Medicare has restrictions and limitations on what it will cover for skilled home care assistance. Unfortunately, seniors mistakenly believe that Medicare covers the entire recovery period at home...and it does not.

For example:

The average short term recovery time for hip replacement is 3 to 6 weeks; and for knee replacement it's up to 3 months to return to most daily activities.²

“Many older adults want to age in place – stay in their own homes as they get older – but may have concerns about safety, getting around, or other daily activities.”³
